Seal "Ginko-in" 銀行印

Nowadays they recommend using a different seal from your real registered one just for your bank accounts. Thus, most people will have another custom seal made just for this security. It's the one most Japanese use second most often after their personal unregistered seal. It will be medium sized (about the size of your index finger: 13.5mm to 18mm). There are size and shape restrictions in that the impressed image must fit within the dotted red circle on bank forms.

You can get Inkan from internet or shops.
